

The Importance of Trust

Your business will only be successful if you keep your customer's trust.

Trust is especially important if you run a courier service, sales operation, or some other business that requires you to send employees out to meet with your customers.

Customers don't want to wait around for you. They need to trust that you'll be there when you said you'd be there. If you don't show up on time consistently, your customers will eventually leave you for one of your competitors.

Getting to your customers on time can be difficult. There are many obstacles that might get in the way, such as traffic, construction, and bad weather.

All these variables make route planning incredibly complicated. When you try to do it by yourself, you may make a mistake, which will delay your drivers and upset your customers.

But you don't need to plan routes by yourself. Route4Me does the hard work for you. It guarantees that every route you give your drivers is 100% accurate and optimized. That'll make it easier for your drivers to be punctual.

Update ETAs Instantly

Your Customers Will Always Know What's Going On

When something does delay your drivers, the ETA your customer has access to through Route4Me will be updated automatically.

Remember, your customers always want to be updated. While delays are never ideal, but the sooner your customers know about them, the better.

Let Your Customers Know Your Driver Is Close By Route4Me also has a geofencing feature that allows you to draw custom borders over a real-world map.

You can draw a border around a customer and set it up so that every time your driver crosses the border, the customer receives a text message. They'll appreciate the notice.
